Next Generation Well Construction & Abandonment

Conference

SAVE THE DATE:
9 December 2015

With great pleasure the Municipality of Emmen and TNO invite you to the conference of the Open Innovation Consortium 'Next Generation Well Construction & Abandonment', on 9 December 2015.

Invitation

On the 25th of September an industry consortium including Shell, NAM, Huisman Equipment, Total Nederland, Well Engineering Partners, FMC Technologies, Teijin and EBN, discussed Well Integrity & Well Abandonment and the challenges the industry is facing in the context of the changing market and future needs. An ambitious goal was projected to develop NEXT GENERATION WELL CONSTRUCTION & ABANDONMENT, aiming at half the Total Life Cycle Cost of a well and at reducing the environmental footprint to facilitate the transition to a sustainable energy future. A second conference will be held on the 9th of December. In this conference the consortium shares insights and you have the opportunity to discover the benefits of participating in the consortium.

The Conference

The goal of this conference is to establish the foundation for an Open Innovation Consortium to create new business with innovative well designs and abandonment techniques. Information and knowledge will be shared combined with topical discussion to create focus. You are invited to participate in the discussion to share your view and explore potential innovation opportunities to strengthen your business.

Why should you attend?

The Next Generation Well Construction & Abandonment consortium has the ambition to become the hatchery for step-changing innovations, resulting in new business for the consortium partners and leading to the establishment of an innovation network. Based on an Open Innovation structure the program will promote knowledge exchange between regions, industry, small and medium enterprises, and the research and education community.

Save the date

We look forward to meet you at the Conference on December 9th. Speakers and final agenda will be announced in the final invitation. Please register for this conference at: www.congresbureaudrenthe.nl/9december
